U. S. ENTRANCE INTO WAR INSPIRING TO BRITISH AND IRISH

Interviews With Leading Men Show That Confidence Abroad Has Been Bolstered Up By America's Action.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Belfast, Ireland, April 6.—Inspiration and confidence arising from America's entrance into the world war and from the effort to exert her whole power in the entente cause were expressed by noted Britons and Irishmen today in a series of messages to the people of the United States on the first anniversary of American participation.

"It has inspired us," writes Sir Ignatius O'Brien, lord chancellor of Ireland. "It is the salvation of humanity," says Viscount Mersey, formerly head of the commission which investigated the destruction of the Lusitania. "We understand one another," declares Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

These messages gathered by the Associated Press. They represent many shades of political and religious belief. Excerpts from the most notable of them follow:

Sir Ignatius O'Brien, Lord Chancellor of Ireland: The splendid way in which the people of the United States have thrown themselves whole heartedly into the prosecution of the war on behalf of right and freedom has inspired us all with the hope that the world may soon, in the words of their great president, be made safe for democracy.

Walter Hume Long, British Secretary of State for the Colonies: I hope that the united efforts of the great Anglo-Saxon races and their allies may soon put an end to the curse of militarism.

The Most Rev. Dr. John R. Crozier, Primate of all Ireland: May God bless our kinsfolk overseas who are now cementing the long continued friendship of America and Great Britain!

A Poem From Tennyson.

Lord Tennyson, a son of the famous poet sent this extract from one of his father's poems:

Gigantic daughter of the West,
We drink to thee across the flood,
We know thee best; we love thee best.
For art not thou of British blood?
Hand all round?

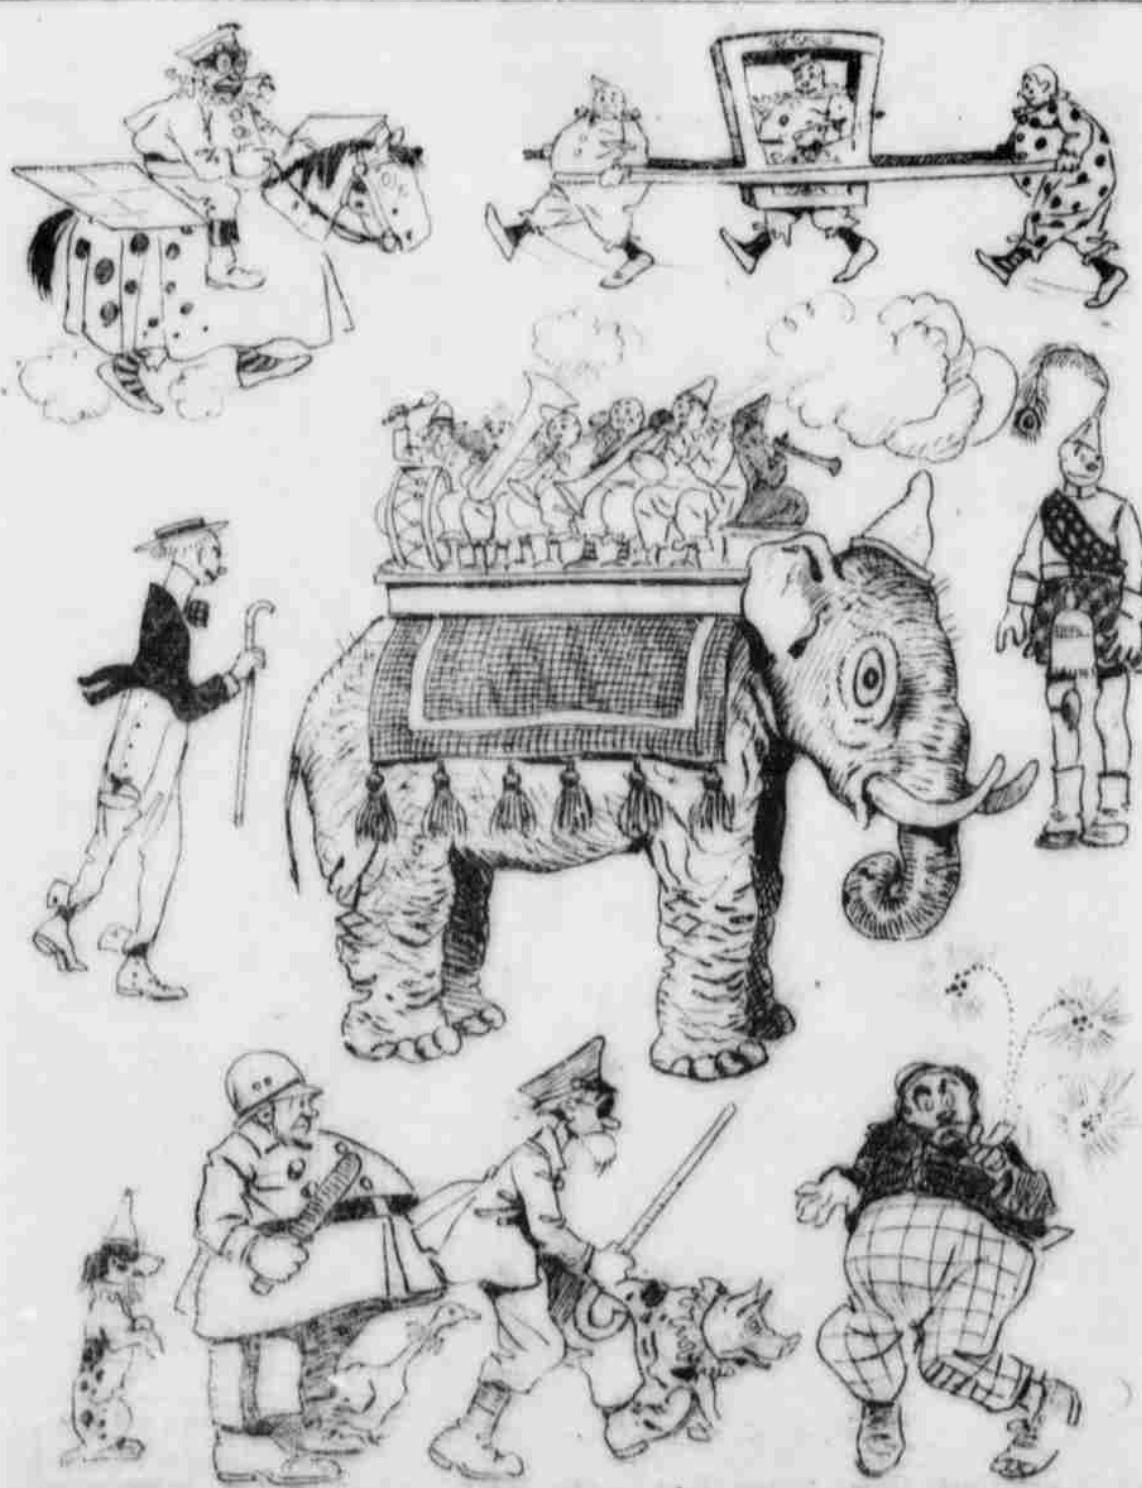

God the tyrant's cause confound,
To our great kinmen of the west,
And the great cause of freedom
Round and round.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: America and we understand one another. There is no more to say. Just one hand grip and to work.

George H. Robert, British Minister of Labor: Particular labor here rejoices that its instinct finds such splendid response in the heart of America of labor. We go forward hopefully to the achievement of a cause based upon universal justice.

John Brodrige, British Pensions Minister: We look to the coming year for such a manifestation of America's power as will help toward the allied aims of making the world safe for democracy.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Ingram, Bishop of London: The entrance of America into the war was the greatest event in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race and will, I hope, assure victory for our righteous cause."

CHAIN ROCKETS ARE USED BY GERMANS IN NIGHT AIR ATTACKS

They Consist of Long Chains of Brilliantly Lighted Balls, Bright Green in Color, Used in the Form of a Barrage.

Behind British Lines in France, April 4.—One of the Germans' favorite devices for opposing British airmen on a night raid or reconnaissance, is a bar-

Father Bernard Vaughan: We congratulate with all our hearts "the champions of the rights of mankind," the American people.

Salvation of Humanity.
Viscount Mersey: I regard the advent of America as the salvation of humanity.

Sir William Crookes: I have been cheered by noting the whole-hearted manner in which America is taking her place in the fight for right and liberty.

Marie Corelli, Novelist: Old dissensions are dead—old prejudices have ceased to exist—and not only "hands across the sea" have met to defend the mother country but hearts too are united in a bulwark of safety for the world.

Max Pemberton: The war aims of America are justice, truth and the survival of civilization. She is pursuing them in a manner worthy of her people and her history.

Sir Edward H. Seymour, Admiral of the Fleet: Nothing can be more encouraging for the future peace and happiness of all countries than the present alliance of the two great sister Anglo-Saxon nations.

Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge: President Wilson's affirmation that the fight is "for the ultimate peace of the world, for the liberation of its peoples," is now the war cry of the American nation. Those who know and admire it are confident that that nation will not stop until its inspiring object is attained.

The Duke of Montrose: Ships of a new type, but manned by the old Mayflower spirit, bring the sons of New England back to fight side by side with old England in a common cause.

Baron Fochsrauer: With the rest of our fellow countrymen I rejoice to think that the two great portions of the English-speaking people have, after many years, rejoined to fight in the common cause of justice and liberty.

Lord Mayor of Liverpool: Liverpool continues to rejoice in the great part the United States is taking in the great war for liberty, justice and civilization.

J. P. Mahaffy, Provost of Trinity College, Dublin: We hail this magnificent exposition of America's policy and world aims (President Wilson's) with the deepest emotion and are confident that the unavoidable delays in their realization are signs of that early and deliberate which are characteristic of every great and sound undertaking.

Rt. Rev. J. Irwin, D. D., Moderator of the Irish Presbyterian General Assembly: We are amazed at the completeness and magnitude of your sacrifice. Nothing finer, more chivalrous, more Christian has ever been done by any nation.

There is no easing up on the rules as to purchases of wheat flour substitutes. In households not over six pounds per person of wheat flour may be used.

In public eating places six pounds of wheat flour is required to do for 90 meals—three meals a day for 30 days. One person shall not use more than two ounces of wheat products at a meal. Wheat products shall not be served except where specifically requested.

Wheatless days and wheatless meals must be continued. In the month of April meals should be wheatless, leaving 45 meals at which wheat products may be served.

The food administration is requiring all restaurants, hotels and eating places in New Mexico to report the number of meals served in March, and the April allotment of wheat flour will be adjusted on this basis. The amount of flour cannot exceed six pounds to 90 meals. If there is some special run of business to be pleaded, the matter will be considered by the food administration.

TO DO HER PART TO WIN THE GREAT CULMINATING BATTLE FOR CIVILIZATION NOW RAGING IN FRANCE, AMERICA MUST SUPPLY FOOD UNFAILINGLY AND QUICKLY. THE FOOD SUPPLY FOR THE FIGHTERS IS THE MOST ABSOLUTE RESPONSIBILITY EVER FACED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES. EVERY APPEAL AND ORDER OF THE FOOD ADMINISTRATION MUST MEET WITH INSTANT AND ABSOLUTE CO-OPERATION TO THE LETTER.

A Hoover kitchen and general lecture room is to be established in connection with the headquarters offices of the federal food administration for New Mexico. The quarters are furnished by Mr. J. Korbler of Albuquerque free of cost to the food administration, and the kitchen will be equipped by merchants of Albuquerque without expense. In connection with the experiments and demonstrations here a widespread campaign will be conducted among the housewives of the state for practical kitchen Hooverizing in the preparation of meals. High school home economics teachers and the Hoover teams will assist in this work under the general direction of Mrs. Ruth C. Miller, head of the division of home economics. Lectures along these lines will be delivered in the demonstration room.

Have you written your graduating essay?" asked Maud.

"Yes," replied Maud. "Wasn't it a lot of work?"

Just dreadful. First I had to hunt up words that were big enough, and then I had to keep looking in the dictionary to see what they meant; and, honestly, I began to think I never would get it finished."—Washington Star.

Food Administration Notes.

Ralph C. Ely, federal food administrator of New Mexico, and his subordinates, have issued the following instructions which give of information to the general public:

John D. Clark, professor of chemistry at the University of New Mexico, has been appointed chemist and head of the division of utilization of waste of the federal food administration in New Mexico.

Prof. Clark, whose work is expected to develop into one of the most important branches of food administrative activity, is preparing a series of articles which will open the eyes of the people of New Mexico to the tremendous waste of resources and neglect of efficiency opportunities lying daily manifested before them. They will, of course, have a direct bearing upon the conservation of food resources. Prof. Clark has in due time a thorough study of these matters. His discussions of the place of the cat, dog, mouse, rat, hawk, insect-eating birds and other creatures in the food situation will be novel and illuminating, and he will deal with various other aspects of war-winning efficiency in a new way.

A relaxing of the restrictions on meat consumption and a tightening of the wheat-saving regulations are announced by the food administration.

The meatless day is abolished for a period of at least thirty days and the consumption of wheat flour products is ordered cut down still further.

Lack of shipping to get meat to Europe, resulting congestion at seaports, with the obstructed streams of meat "backing water," and the packers and the growers, has made it advisable to lift the meat ban, and for thirty and perhaps sixty days, the people of the United States are permitted to eat meat as usual.

The respective relaxation and tightening on meat and wheat today clearly supply market conditions.

men, "to get thoroughly into the war and to fulfill every measure of their obligations toward it."

Local merchants are planning unique and effective window displays on May 7 in order to bring the food crisis home vigorously to the public. The observance of May 7 should be general, as a day upon which to plan new sacrifices, to renew determination, to "bring the war home." Four-minute men can find a keynote in this anniversary; it should be impressed upon the children in the schools and featured in all newspapers. The food administration would like to have every newspaper in the state take up the matter editorially and impress upon their readers the urgency of the need.

Mr. Cushman now has the names of 1,250 New Mexico merchants on his mailing list and the number is being added to rapidly. A letter is being sent out from three to five times a month on food administration business.

Any one whose name is not on the list and who is not receiving these letters should communicate with Mr. Cushman at Albuquerque.

"Winning the war—that's the great thing now. What I have seen of the soldiers and the sailors in the camps I have visited convinces me that our American men are the sort to win a war."

"I know they will fight as Americans should. These are just average Americans. But they prove that the average American is a wonderful person. They will win because of a force greater than mere power, with which they will fight. They will win because they are fighting for the right, which means everything to men of spirit."

"They will fight better for the fact that each one of us is standing behind them, doing what we can to have some part in the war. They will certainly fight better because of the Y. M. C. A., the enlisted men's club, and his wife home. In whatever camp I have been since I have been singing for the soldiers. I have seen how much the Y. M. C. A. means to them."

Soldiers Return Compliment.

Miss Wilson has a high opinion of the soldiers, and they return the compliment. Their enthusiasm in listening to her sing in singing with her, and their naive expressions of appreciation have given her a great deal of pleasure.

When she sang at Camp Merritt, Tenafly, New Jersey, the soldiers who were not able to crowd into the Y. M. C. A. building clung to the roof, and peered in at the windows, to hear as much of her songs as they could. "More, more," called the sick soldiers at Camp Upton, Yaphank, New York, after each song. As she was leaving, one of them expressed the gratitude the men in uniform feel, when he called after her: "Thank you, Miss Wilson."

She is accompanied on the tour by Mrs. Ross David, her personal friend, who is her pianist and singer, and by Melville A. Clarke, of Syracuse, N. Y., harpist, who organized community singing in the camps around Syracuse. With intermissions for concerts of her own, with which she is passing all the expenses of her trip, the tour will last until the end of May.

THE WAR GARDENER'S DILEMMA

EVERY home should have a war garden and a flock of chickens. If chickens and garden get mixed—to the detriment of the garden, be patient. The U. S. Food Administration has issued regulations to poultry dealers stopping the dealing in freshly killed or live hens. All of the nation's hens are needed in these times of war, as layers. The national stock of eggs must be increased. In the matter of war gardens, remember that Germany would probably have collapsed during the years of 1916 and 1917 had it not been for the enormous crops raised in war gardens that supplemented the farm crops. In America the need of war gardens is imperative. Plant non-perishables as far as possible. Beans, onions and potatoes will keep for winter.
